BELIEVES AND LIVES WHAT HE PREACHES, SUNDAY SAYS; UNCONSCIOUSLY PROVES IT

Evangelist Preaches Two Great, Forceful Sermons at Pikes Peak, but Snappy Sayings and Violent Gestures Are Not so Much in Evidence as on Previous Occasions

Billy Sunday preached another big, forceful sermon last night another sermon on prayer. Yesterday afternoon the evangelist used the same subject—prayer, the greatest source of power known to human beings. Billy Sunday has repeatedly said he believes and lives everything he preaches. Last night he unconsciously offered the first proof of that statement. He certainly believes in prayer; he believes in the greatest source of power known to human beings. At the conclusion of his sermon last night he prayed. "And such a prayer probably was never before heard in Colorado Springs." When the evangelist broke his sermon and started to pray few realized it. He prays just like he preaches—simply and forcibly. He prayed that the city and county officials, the business men, the professional men, the laborers, the farmers—everybody—be brought to Christ through the campaign just launched. But his words didn't count for much; it was his expression. Billy Sunday forgot the people who were sitting in front of him; he forgot everything—and he prayed. One could not look at him and doubt that he had absolute confidence that the Lord would hear his prayer and if he saw it answered it. When he finished he was satisfied.

Last night's sermon was characteristic. The evangelist hit straight from the shoulder; he didn't mince words. However, he used fewer Sunday sayings than usual and he did not work so hard, physically, as has been his wont.

FOLLOWING THE SUNDAY PARTY

The Billy Sunday party will visit Crystal Park this morning; the guests of Mr. C. D. Dotterer, president of the Crystal Park Auto-Road company. The party will make the trip in a special automobile leaving here at 8:30 o'clock and returning about noon.

Next Saturday morning the Sunday party will go to the summit of Pikes Peak, the famous Cog road trip being one of the last of the important scenic trips to be taken by the evangelistic party.

The first noon-day meeting of the Sunday campaign will be held today at the Colorado Midland shops in Colorado City. Beginning probably next week meetings at factories, business houses and other places in the business district will be held.

The first drawing room meeting of the revival will be held next week at the home of William Lennox. These meetings will be one of the features of the campaign.

"With the exception of the financial end of the campaign thus far it most successful," Billy Sunday says. "The crowds are among the most appreciative I ever preached to. But we ought to get this money business out of the way at once; it retards the work."

Mr. Sunday met 42 representative business men of the city yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. The meeting was a social affair, just to get acquainted.

Billy Sunday will deliver two of his most famous sermons this week. On Friday night and the other Saturday night. Friday he will talk on "The Home." Saturday his subject will be "Forces That Win," the sermon being especially for young people. Several sections of seats will be reserved for young people on that night.

And He Kept It Too.

"And I'll be blamed if I didn't do it," he concluded. It brought out the hearty applause. "But when I prayed

Civil Ceremony of the Willard-Roosevelt Wedding Is Performed by Madrid Magistrate; Religious Rites Take Place Today

MISS BELLE WILLARD AND KERMIT ROOSEVELT. Who were married in Madrid. Mr. Roosevelt is the second son of the former president, and Miss Willard is the daughter of Joseph R. Willard, United States ambassador to Spain. The ceremony was performed by a Madrid magistrate.

MADRID, June 10.—The civil marriage of Miss Belle Willard, daughter of the American ambassador to Spain, and Kermit Roosevelt, son of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, was performed today.

The ceremony was performed at the office and residence of the chief of police by the magistrate of the Buena Vista district.

Police headquarters are located in a populous section of the city, and the passage of the wedding party in five automobiles attracted considerable attention.

Moving picture men were in force and in the vicinity of the building a small crowd gathered, which was kept from approaching too closely by detectives and policemen.

Colonel Roosevelt and Ambassador Willard were among those present at the ceremonies, after which the wedding party left the city to pass the afternoon at Toledo.

The religious rites will be solemnized tomorrow.

FIGHT ON TOLLS REPEAL IS OVER

SENATE ABOUT READY TO PASS BILL

Administration Forces Win Preliminary Skirmishes on Measure

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The senate tonight cleared away most of the legislative barriers in the way of a final vote on the canal tolls exemption repeal bill. Unless there are unforeseen developments, the fight which has raged in congress over this measure for many months, will come to a close before adjournment tomorrow.

Votes taken tonight on amendments designed to preserve any right the United States possesses under the Hay-Bunauville treaty with Great Britain to exempt American ships from tolls payment through the Panama canal, indicated that the forces of repeal will win by a substantial majority.

Senator Simmons, who has led the fight for repeal, has estimated that the bill will carry by not less than 10 votes and there is every promise that his estimate will prove correct.

Repeal Forces Win.

There was no real test of strength in the voting tonight, but the repeal forces won the first round of the fight when they put through by a vote of 40 to 24, the so-called Simmons-Norris amendment, which declares that the United States does not waive or relinquish any right it may have to exempt American ships from payment of tolls through the Panama canal.

Both sides had conceded that this amendment would carry.

Although two subsequent attempts to change the language of the amendment so that it would refer to a right the United States has instead of any right it may have, were defeated with ease. Neither vote was so decisive as that on the Simmons amendment. One modifying amendment by Senator Sutherland was beaten, 45 to 33, and the second proposed by Senator Cummins suffered a like fate by a vote of 45 to 37.

Senator Root, the acknowledged leader of the Republican senators who favor repeal, was absent.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS GRADUATES TONIGHT

Exercises Will Be Held in Burns at 8 o'clock

115 in the Class

This evening, in the Burns theater, the class of 1914 of the Colorado Springs High school will receive their diplomas at the annual commencement exercises of the school.

The exercises will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and the principal address will be made by Dr. Percy Holmes, Registrar of the University of Chicago, who will speak on the subject, "The School and the Community."

Dr. Holmes is a noted lecturer and writer, and his address is expected to be of much practical value to the young graduates.

The class numbers 115 boys and girls. Admission to the theater will be by ticket only and as all available seats have been disposed of, a capacity house is assured.

Musical for the evening will be furnished by "Pinkie's Orchestra." Mrs. Katherine Mowry, president of the board of education, will present the diplomas to the class, and Principal Roscoe L. Hill will make the annual scholarship and honor announcements.

Others who will participate are the Rev. W. W. Ramsey, pastor of the First Congregational church, who will give the invocation, and the Rev. R. B. Wolf of the Lutheran church, who will pronounce the benediction.

The final event of the commencement week will be the alumni reception at the Antlers hotel tomorrow night.

SANE STYLE IN DRESS IS URGED

SHOP GIRL SETS FASHION FOR SOCIETY

Suffrage Scores Point at Club Women's Convention in Chicago

CHICAGO, June 10.—After suffrage clubs scored their first victory, dress reform in its relation to politics came before the Chicago convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at the opening session here today.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette of Pasadena, Cal., in a plea for sane dress, asserted: "We have 400,000 women favoring our plan for dress reform and we will ask the convention to endorse it."

"Some of the styles are distressing and extreme," she added. "We would like to see women wear dresses that are large enough for them to step in without inconspicuously."

There are any number of women who are ready to dress in a sane manner if the manufacturers will allow them to. They can dress beautifully, appropriately and decently and still be in good style.

Shoppirl Makes Fashion.

The shoppirl is the one who makes the fashion for the society woman who goes to a shop and asks for the very latest. There is nothing for the girl at the shop to do but to bring out the latest. That is why we wish to have the manufacturers join with us in the reform.

Led by Illinois women, the suffragettes won the right of discussion on the floor of the main convention before the council of the federation. While the decisive action was taken, the sentiment of a majority of the delegates was so strongly expressed that the executive board and other officers cannot but accept the advice offered. This will give the suffrage an opportunity to bring their battle for indorsement to the floor of the convention for the first time.

Women as Politicians.

The women of the federation, 10,000 strong, threw themselves into the convention activity with all the ardor of seasoned politicians. Party flags were everywhere and "standpatters" of the organization were lined up against the suffragettes, but lost their first clash in the throwing open of the right to discussion from the floor.

Mrs. Burdette spoke to all eyes and appreciative audience.

"With forbidden knowledge," the speaker said, "come self-consciousness, with self-consciousness came the sense of shame and the protective garment," and thus did the transgressions of our first parents cover all future generations with a blanket mortgage of clothes which we are paying off with heavy interest.

Gowns Reflect Morals.

Whether clothes were first worn as an ornamental covering or for protection, matters little; for we seem even to this day to consider the first of (Continued on Page Three.)

American Delegates Are Firm in Demand That Whole Problem Be Settled

MEDIATORS FAVOR HUERTA Dictator Practically Bottled Up in Capital by the Constitutionalists

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 10.—Differences of opinion so serious that they imperil the continuance of the conferences here have developed between the American delegates and the Mexican plenipotentiaries. On two vital points there is that disagreement.

First, the mediators, representing presumably the viewpoint of the Mexican Delegates, are insisting that the provisional president of Mexico shall be a neutral who shall not have been an active partisan in the Constitutional cause. The American delegates have emphatically stated that unless the Cuban bill upon a man of distinction Constitutional sympathies not necessarily a military chief or leader, but one who would command their confidence, there can be no hope of Constitutional acceptance of any peace program adopted here.

U. S. Bitterly Opposes Plan.

Secondly, the United States government is determined that the method of transition from the present regime to the new government shall not be through the appointment by General Huerta, as minister of foreign affairs of the man agreed upon for provisional president, to permit him to exercise the constitutional function of naming his successor, according to the American viewpoint will be equivalent to recognition to the Huerta government.

This view is forcefully opposed by the mediators who argue that inasmuch as the world will know the mediation plan, it has selected the next provisional president, the form of succession is not important.

Mediators' Viewpoint.

Which is the greater sacrifice, the mediators asked for General Huerta to name a minister of foreign affairs, whose political principles were not in accord with his own and then to have the latter named almost immediately as provisional president of Mexico, or for the United States to yield the technically as to the manner in which transfer should be made? This is the argument which they have presented to the American government.

The American delegates are opposed to what the mediators term the constitutional method of succession; not only because of this government's consistent policy of nonrecognition of Huerta, but because the Constitutionalists have informed Washington that they will never accept a Huerta appointee as a provisional president and that peace cannot be restored without their acquiescence.

Rebels Have Huerta Bottled Up.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Railroad communication between Mexico City and Vera Cruz is menaced by Constitutional forces. Brigadier General Fustier reported today to the war department that he is in touch with the Constitutionalists.

COLORADO COLLEGE GRADUATES CLASS OF 79, LARGEST IN HISTORY OF INSTITUTION

Fifty-two Women, 27 Men Awarded Degrees at Commencement Exercises Yesterday

Colorado college closed its academic year yesterday with the commencement exercises and today the buildings and residence halls are deserted. Seventy-nine students, 52 young men and 27 young women, closed their four years' course, received their degrees and became the newest alumni.

Parkins hall was crowded with students, alumni and friends, and many could not gain admittance. Governor Elias M. Ammons and Mayor McKesson occupied seats on the platform, with the members of the faculty, together with Professor C. H. Moore of Harvard and President Livingston Farrand of the University of Colorado. Superintendent C. M. Cole and Principal R. C. Hill.

Only two honorary degrees were conferred yesterday by the college. The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon President Farrand and the degree of Litt.D. was conferred upon Professor Moore of Harvard, who has been exchange professor at the college during the last two months.

Needs of College Outlined.

President's Stetson's announcements, while not containing any large gifts or changes in plans, was of much interest and several changes were announced in the faculty. The president outlined a few needs for the college, first of which he stated was the completion of Coburn library, which is now crowded. He quoted figures showing that 800,000 books were taken from the library last year, 350,000 of which were taken by people outside of the college. He stated that $250,000 was needed to complete the library and that $200,000 for an additional endowment was also needed. Endowment for the care of the campus, which he described as being larger than any park in the city outside of Monument Valley park is also a pressing need of the college, the president asserted.

A million dollar addition to the general endowment fund and $300,000 for an engineering building are other funds to be worked for in the future, the president announced.

A number of announcements concerning the faculty were made by President Stetson. Dean Florian Calori was granted a year's leave of absence, which he will spend in travel and study in Europe. Professor J. W. Park, who was head master at Outter academy and had charge of the public speaking classes in the college, will be the exchange professor from the college to Harvard next year. The Harvard exchange professor will be Dr. Lawrence (Continued on Page Six.)

Snatches From Sunday Sermons

You can't pray. "The kingdom come," and look at God through the bottom of a beer glass.

God has to back a hearse up in front of the door to make some people see how weak they are.

You call me a grafter—come up within reach and say it; you'll go down in a Red Cross wash.

Never worry about the outside if the inside is all right.

When I shove a check in at the window at the Bank of Heaven in the name of Jesus I get full value.

The churches look like they eat too much and sleep too well to see the world go to hell so fast it's almost hidden in a cloud of dust.

Shouldn't all of us church members be Christians? practically, they're atheists.

Graft has got a strangle hold on religion.

The fellow who rents his property for a saloon or house in the redlight district is no better than the saloon keeper.

We get potted lamb that never said, "Baa." And we eat meat from breweries and call it breakfast food.

The man who pokes a gun under the nose and demands my money or life is no worse than the man who secures control of one of the nation's indispensable commodities and puts the price up and makes the people pay or starve to death.

If the churches here would spend a night wrestling with God, the religious history of the Pikea Peak region would have to be rewritten.

Some old devils buy flowers when their wives die to hide their mean hearts; otherwise, no one else would marry them.

What irony to inscribe "At Rest" on a tombstone when the wife was worked to death.

THE TELEGRAPH PAYS TRIBUTE

WHENEVER there is an editorial in the Evening Telegraph relating to the Progressive party of Colorado there is shown a distinct lack of knowledge regarding facts, and there is generally a strained effort made to eliminate the truth.

In the editorial printed in last night's Telegraph the wish must have been father to the thought, for there is no other excuse for the deliberate misstatement of the Progressive party's clearly defined stand.

The Progressive leaders who were honored at the banquet in Denver last Monday night returned from the East with the solid backing of Colonel Roosevelt and the Eastern leaders. The absence of several Progressives, who deliberately stayed away from that banquet, has cleared the atmosphere, and the Progressive party is in a far stronger position now than ever before, for it knows at last who are its enemies and who are its loyal supporters. The party is cemented solidly today and can now go forward united against a common foe.

The efforts that are being made by the opposition press to throw confusion into the ranks of the Progressive party is a strong tribute to the growing power of that party in the state.

The leaders of the party have come out unequivocally for a strict enforcement of law and order, treating operators and employees alike. They have said publicly which, curiously enough, some papers have failed to mention, that the Progressive party stands for putting down all insurrections against the government and for suppressing violence on the part of both the operators and their employees. It also stands for eliminating the causes which bring disorder, for only under just working conditions can law and order be lasting.

These efforts to misquote and to purposely misconstrue the statements which have been made are the well-known methods of gang politicians and are thoroughly understood by the public.

We would like to mention to the Evening Telegraph that developments of the next two or three weeks will probably call forth several such editorials regarding the Progressive party, that party which the Telegraph from time to time, has spoken of as passing away.

WELCOMING THE STRANGER

WE SUGGESTED the value of the personal equation in business in one of our editorials yesterday morning, and in the matter of summer travel business the suggestion may well be enlarged upon. Colorado people are extremely courteous to strangers, a fact that frequently is commented upon. It is not at all uncommon to see a business man step out of his course a block or more in showing an inquiring stranger his way.

This is a mighty good habit to cultivate. The men who went from here on the sociability run to Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas will be a unanimous committee this summer in greeting visitors from that part of the world. They met with so much old-fashioned hospitality, and were given so many opportunities to see the sights, that they will be kept busy paying their personal obligations when the travelers begin to arrive in numbers.

Reciprocity is all right and we ought to practice it by visiting those who visit us, but we are going to have a lot of people to greet before we can think of paying visits. The thing for every Pikes Peak region man and woman to do is to nominate himself or herself a committee of one on reception this summer. Everyone knows a "tourist" almost instinctively and it will be good business to greet him handsomely, get him by the hand and make him feel welcome.

There are a lot of things that we can do for the strangers. We can join with them in their annual state gatherings; we can have a Colorado Day and entertain them at a big picnic as guests of Colorado. The Chamber of Commerce is almost ready to issue an invitation for a sociability run to this state, but has not yet chosen a suitable occasion. That will give us a chance at a hurrah in welcoming the visitors that should be made memorable.

If getting acquainted with one's patrons is a good policy for a merchant, it applies equally well to a community that has the commodity known as "summer resort" on sale. This region is open to everyone in the world, but it is a cheerful feeling to be invited back and know by word of mouth that you are personally welcome.

WHY NOT PUBLIC FIREWORKS?

FOURTH OF JULY without some red fire and explosions would hardly be all that the day should be, and the movement for a sane Fourth never intended to shut out all displays of fireworks. Nobody wants the day to be too tame and unsatisfactory. The people must be protected from careless handling of the explosives which through modern inventions, have become a menace, but they need not be starved.

Taking away from the people the right to use explosives when and where they please, and strictly regulating fireworks exhibitions, would seem to place upon the municipality an obligation to supply in their place something of a public nature, properly safeguarded. Would not the best way to do this be an exhibition of fireworks under city supervision? That might minimize the number of private exhibitions.

Various private parks have their exhibitions hereabouts and they are cheap enough, but the municipal display might find a place. Fireworks when contracted for in quantities are not expensive; a creditable exhibition may be secured for a few hundred dollars. The funds might be provided by subscriptions or otherwise. Closing the national holiday with a good display gives pleasure to thousands and would make the new restrictions on explosives seem less onerous.

When Theodore Roosevelt pronounced Colorado the nation's playground he stopped in the middle of the announcement. It also is the nation's greatest treasure vault of mineral resources and is forging to the front as one of the nation's most important granaries. According to the Department of Agriculture forecast of June 1 this state will produce 28,000,000 bushels of wheat, oats and barley this year.

Denver's young school teachers agree that when one of their number marries she should be compelled to resign, on the ground that the man whom she marries should be able to support her just as well as she is doing it herself. Still, a good many $100 a month school teachers have quit their jobs to cook for a $35 a month man.

Those Kelly army men who are serving jail sentences in El Paso county would look good in Kansas harvest fields at this time, if there were only some way of landing them there. The farmers are so desperate for help that it is sure they would hold them, if they had to call on the militia to do it.

One United States senator, sixteen members of the House, and one cabinet officer carry trades union cards. Now, it may be understood why the exemptions in the Clayton bill went through so readily.

At this time of Commencement, with its Greek play revivals, its degrees of learning and theses, keep in mind that we have a new bantam-weight champion of the world. Hail to the champion!

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION

To the Editor of The Gazette:
I am an eastern advertising agent and travel publisher, going up and down your beautiful state, on my way to the coast. I had heard and read much about Colorado, but the half has not yet been told. The best thing about Colorado is the climate—next to your enterprising citizenship.

Eastern people should be told in no uncertain way that all is now new in Colorado, as regards strikes. Your state chamber of commerce should send out a message. Actually some people in the east think it dangerous to travel in Colorado this summer. That absurdity should be punctured at once, and in no uncertain way.

My hat is off to Colorado—its climate and its people.

"HAPPY HARRY"

To the Editor of The Gazette:
In commemoration of "Happy Harry," the following eulogium on a departed friend by Dr. Frank Crane is appropriate. He was a man of great difference, my dear. I don't blame Hilda, for I'm sure she will be different when she has children of her own and knows how much mothers suffer for children and how much children mean to them. It takes either much experience or much imagination to be truly unselfish.

The most unselfish man in intention whom I know is sometimes quite selfish in deed because he lacks imagination. He is generous to a fault with money; he does many kind things for her. But because he utterly lacks imagination to sense the things that will make her feel hurt or unhappy he is sometimes very selfish indeed.

The same place which is paved with good intentions is walked in with the selfishness of those who mean to be unselfish but don't have enough imagination to know how to do it.

but was always cheerful and a fountain of contentment. He gave his children a good education, for that he said he owed them. He was a man because he discharged his responsibilities to those dependent upon him. He did his own thinking, but respected the opinions of others. Nobody ever stamped him in any movement. He worked with various organizations, but was a practical Christian Endeavorer.

He was never known to whip his horse or to kick his dog. He was friendly to dumb animals, and they loved him. He was disciplined; he could hold his tongue, govern his temper and control his passions; and as his children's friend he was as their father. His heart was big and tender; his conscience was keen; his love was loyal.

The world's stage, and we play many parts. Let a thank God that here and there someone like "Happy Harry" Ottlinger, finds it to his taste to play the part of a man as well as a Christian.

None knew him but to praise.
None named him but to praise.

The Water Wagon

BY GEORGE FITCH
Author of "At Good Old Swish"

The water wagon is a very popular vehicle, running principally between Poverty and Success. It does an enormous business, but has never yet come under the control of the interstate commerce commission. This is because it has no rates, doing a free business. In spite of this fact the joy car which is propelled by alcohol, and which charges an enormous price is a very formidable competitor, although there have been more wrecks on its system than on any other line running between the two destinations.

This is because the water wagon is very uncomfortable and is not fitted with many conveniences for its passengers. Those who were born on the water wagon and who have never gotten off of it ride it with very little difficulty even on the roughest roads, but the casual passenger would have more success riding a peevish buffalo. The water wagon does not stop for passengers, but must be accended while in full career without the aid of ladders, stairs, hand-holds, ropes or elevators, and riders must stick on its smooth round back after without stirrups or life lines. The terminal station of this celebrated vehicle is magnificently fitted up, and the view from its windows is superb. But the journey itself is tedious, and the wagon frequently rolls in almost entirely empty. A few armchairs would improve the service immensely.

The water wagon runs at all times of the year, but on or about New Year, the traffic is very great. In fact, for a few days it has an almost entire monopoly of travel. Most of the tourists, however, buy short distance, round trip tickets. They ride a few days and then return by falling off and rolling back. No one who has watched a powerful, red-faced man holding frantically onto the water wagon with both arms and shrieking for help, while beside him a slight woman is not only riding placidly but is keeping her children on with very little effort, can feel so brash thereafter about the superiority of man.

The water wagon takes a northerly course to Success, and much of the agency is bleak and uninteresting, consisting mainly of hard work and fainting here and there a lemonade fountain. The fauna is also much less remarkable than that along the more southerly course. Pink alligators and pale green boa-constrictors are never seen from the water wagon. Even the heavens on this route are commonplace, there being but one moon and the usual number of stars.

Imagination and Unselfishness

BY RUTH CAMERON

"One of the hardest things in the world," said the late Joseph Pels, "is to be the man with a full stomach that there is something hungry."

It is very difficult for anyone who has not experienced any given form of discomfort to sense that discomfort, and realize that other people feel it. The selfish man may know, but he does not sense it as an actual pain.

If we could really sense other men's annoyances and troubles, of course, I don't mean actually suffer from them, but realize them, sense them, half of the selfishness in the world would take wings to itself.

For it isn't so much because we do not know, as because we do not know that we permit others to suffer annoyances or misery.

For instance, I have often noticed that a woman who has had to prepare meals and who therefore knows how hard it is to keep them appetizing if they are delayed, will seldom permit herself to be late to the table. It is almost invariably the masculine members of the family, or those feminine members who have not had experience in housework, who are persistently careless about being on time to their meals.

A mother told me the other day that her older daughter was much more considerate and so-called capable than her younger. "You see," she explained, "my older daughter is married and his children of her own. I find that makes a great deal of difference, my dear. I don't blame Hilda, for I'm sure she will be different when she has children of her own and knows how much mothers suffer for children and how much children mean to them."

It takes either much experience or much imagination to be truly unselfish. The most unselfish man in intention whom I know is sometimes quite selfish in deed because he lacks imagination. He is generous to a fault with money; he does many kind things for her. But because he utterly lacks imagination to sense the things that will make her feel hurt or unhappy he is sometimes very selfish indeed.

The same place which is paved with good intentions is walked in with the selfishness of those who mean to be unselfish but don't have enough imagination to know how to do it.

The Mexican Situation

RUSINESS IN MEXICO

From the Boston Evening Transcript.
Mexico is a country of enormous area, its territory covering 1,600,000 square miles. The war can have touched only regions here and there, for the business done during all the time since Huerta's grasp at power set civil strife loose is not much below the proportions of ordinary trade. The nine months ending with March Mexico furnished the United States with goods, wares and products valued in excess of $85,000,000, and took in return $52,000,000 worth from the United States. Plainly somebody in Mexico stays at home and attends to business, leaving fighting to those whose trade is suffering. The war undoubtedly has increased in volume since March closed, and therefore we must make allowances for the better conditions that prevailed in January and February when we are noting the extent to which business was undisturbed during those months. Foreigners and foreign corporations may have fared better than natives or native industries, but many of the latter must have experienced little interruption. The annual report of the Mexican Telephone and Telegraph company, dated Feb. 23 last, noted that the unsettled condition of affairs in Mexico had not seriously affected its business. Collectors had been slower and taxes had been levied more slowly, but there were 13,469 telephones in service March 1, 1914, against 12,927 of the corresponding date of 1913. People do not put in telephones when the enemy is at the door.

As the "Constitutionalist" go southward business is resumed in the territory they leave behind them. The trade in fruit and produce with the United States, which ceased while the campaign against Torreon was in progress, has sprung up again and its volume is giving the customs officers on the Texas border something to do besides watching out against arms smugglers. The current estimate of careful observers is that the Villa territory—that controlled by his army—contains about 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 people, while Huerta governs 11,000,000 or 12,000,000. Trade statistics seem to bear out this estimate, by showing that if the majority of Mexicans are not non-revolutionists they are willing to accept Huerta's sway as long as he is strong enough to enable them to carry on business.

THE MEDIATION HALT

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.
Huerta's offer to raise his army as Mexico is politically conditioned instead of being the situation has muddled it the more. Which can hardly be doubted was his intention. The Mexicans, in both camps, have proved themselves past masters in the tricks of diplomacy. The straightforward man is at an immense disadvantage in dealing with such guile and under the rules of diplomatic usage. They do not exactly say one thing and mean another, but they keep the word of promise to our ear and break it to our eyes.

Huerta says he will retire as soon as Mexico is pacified, but he knows there is no chance of Mexico being pacified while he holds on. His delegates announced that no settlement was possible that did not take into account domestic pacification in Mexico, and therefore desired the adoption of Carranza to the mediation program as an essential preliminary.

An adroitly phrased invitation has, it is reported, been sent to the "Constitutionalist" chief to the mediators, but from the situation heard at Washington there is little hope that he will accept the terms. If he does not and the Huerta delegates insist his participation is vital to a settlement, a deadlock will be reached, which may be just what Huerta has been playing for. Both factions are receiving new supplies of ammunition and are probably correspondingly encouraged to fight it out.

Old Max Huerta must have sand paper on one foot and glue on the other.

From the Philadelphia North American.
June 11 is Flag day and the Mexicans probably can assure the flag that day as well as any other.

From the Washington Star.
If there could be such a thing as a latter championed by Huerta, would win it.

From the Philadelphia Dispatch.
An English critic declares his distrust of Villa because "he does not look one in the eye when he speaks." Perhaps it is a room full of blarney in the eye. Look the lordly Englishman in the eye. But reports of Villa's firing line do not indicate lack of Villa's ability to look people in the eye that.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.
Where the influence of Villa is necessary to make Carranza follow the dictates of civilization it is apparent that civilization is in a bad way.

From the Washington Star.
A Mexican general is disposed to maintain a cautious attitude toward mediation, which will enable him to look it over and see whether he can use it in his business.

From the Syracuse Post-Standard.
The "Constitutionalist" would be more trustworthy if they had not the simple supply of arms and ammunition we sent them.

From the Troy Record.
General Huerta says he will resign when Mexico is politically pacified. If the pacification continues along present lines there will not be enough of General Huerta left at that time to write a resignation.

From the Chattanooga Times.
It is suggested that the best thing that could happen to Mexico would be the opening of at least two good baseball leagues. Then the public would forget fighting.

From the Pittsburgh Post.
Getting the Mexican federals and rebels together appears to be a far more difficult problem than getting Huerta to voluntarily retire. But keeping everlastingly at it brings success.

PREPARE FOR YOUR VACATION

The common experience of the vacationer is to blister his neck and arms the first day of his outing. He then stays under cover until his vacation is over. Also the first day out he overexerts his soft, flabby muscles and for the balance of his outing is too stiff to get any pleasure, even when he has the grit to keep going.

Would it not be good judgment to spend a little time every day between now and vacation time in setting in condition for the outing? Put in some time studying hotel advertisements and railroad folders, some time in day dreaming and planning. Also put in some time tanning the skin and toning the muscles.

It is good judgment to get vaccinated against typhoid, but that is another story. The need is to get some extra pigment in the skin of the face, arms and hands, the head and the neck. No better way offers a few minutes each day spent in the sun, light and wind with the head and neck bare and the sleeves rolled to the elbows, will accomplish this.

A little time spent in the sun on the beach, even though the water is too cold for swimming, will suffice. The skin should be to bronze the skin with cold burning oil. Exposures more than 20 minutes long at the start will burn and not bronze.

The muscles can be given tone by walking to work or part of the way. If you live in a city and have a long ride to work, begin by walking a half mile and riding the remainder of the way. In a few days increase to a mile and shortly to two.

At first walk slowly, later get some wind by walking rapidly. At some time during the day do some stair climbing—a few stories, say two to begin with, increase in two weeks to 12 or 15. This tones up the different groups of muscles from those chiefly stressed by walking. It also gives you a good appetite.

After you have followed this program for a week add some bedroom exercises to make you supple. The first time you try to sit down on your heels your knees will creak like a freight train with the noise with your hands, listen to the cracking and down your backbones.

When you try to go backward toward the floor with your head you will notice the stiffness still more. The time to lumber up to tone up, and to tan is before the vacation. It is not fair to take tanning and toning time out of vacation time.

LET THE PULSE ALONE.

Bill writes: "What does a low pulse rate indicate? I am 35, and most of the time when I am sitting down, my pulse registers about 62. Frequently at night, when I am calm and quiet, my pulse registers from 60 to 70. At other times it is normal. Does this indicate a low pulse rate or is it normal?"

REPLY:
1. Nothing the matter with you. Let your pulse alone.
2. Increase.

CEMENT FLOOR.

O. A. writes: "Is it unhealthy to work in a shop with a cement floor? The workmen have to stand on cement all day. Will this dampness cause rheumatism? Will the effects be worse in the winter time?"

REPLY:
1. No; no dampness will reach the feet.
2. A cement floor is a cold floor unless it is heated. In winter wear heavy socks.
SEE EAR SPECIALIST.
C. H. writes: "I am troubled with earache, especially during the winter, and have a kind of a dull feeling. Any one talking to me must speak loudly."

PROF. MOORE PLEADS FOR MORE LIBERAL EDUCATION, IN COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

Should Not Teach Pupils to Shy Like Silly Colts at Facts Whose Relations They Do Not Yet Understand, He Declares

MAKING a plea for a more liberal education, commencing both the local and national level, Prof. C. H. Moore, of the University of Chicago, in his commencement address, declared that the present day's education is too narrow and too technical, and that it should be broadened and liberalized.

He declared that the present day's education is too narrow and too technical, and that it should be broadened and liberalized. He declared that the present day's education is too narrow and too technical, and that it should be broadened and liberalized.

To our friends, the position and function of the college seem clear and plain. From the establishment of Harvard college in 1636 to our own time, the college has been the center of the higher education of the country. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

Liberal Education and the Aim. Hitherto the college, the academic department, as it is called in distinction from its sister professional schools, has aimed to furnish an education in the liberal arts. It has aimed to give the student a broad and liberal education, one that would enable him to understand the world and his place in it, and to be able to deal with the problems of life.

Changes in Methods

But there is a new demand, a new demand for a more liberal education. The young men of the country are no longer content with the narrow and technical education of the past. They want a broad and liberal education, one that will enable them to understand the world and their place in it, and to be able to deal with the problems of life.

College Position Secure

To return, however, to the position of the American college, there are many reasons why we may well believe that it is not going to be extinguished. So far as the proposed extension of the high school course is concerned, this can be done adequately in only a few schools in great centers of population, where the expenditure of money will be needed to secure the necessary equipment and facilities.

Vocational Training

The value of a college education is not in doubt. It is a fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

Longer Course Needed

Furthermore, it is for our country's good that the college should be broadened and liberalized. It should be a place where the young men of the country can receive a broad and liberal education, one that will enable them to understand the world and their place in it, and to be able to deal with the problems of life.

more or less rough and ready technical training, which is the only kind of education that the country can afford to give. It is a fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

Liberal vs. Vocational. Much has often been said of the relative merits of vocational and liberal studies, and in the heat of discussion, extravagant claims have been made for each. It is a fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

Value of Liberal Studies. First of all, liberal studies equip the mind. They give the student a broad and liberal education, one that will enable him to understand the world and his place in it, and to be able to deal with the problems of life. They give the student a broad and liberal education, one that will enable him to understand the world and his place in it, and to be able to deal with the problems of life.

Tendency to Social Action. Again, when we look at the tendency toward social action, we see that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

Training for Knowledge. In this connection there is one point on which I should like to speak for emphasis. It is the fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

KEP- THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Colorado Springs People Know How to Save It

Many Colorado Springs people take their health too lightly. They neglect their kidneys, and as a result, they suffer from all kinds of ailments. It is a fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

matter of fact, in considering any period of history, any generation, the permanent things about the life of that period, the things that are always to be found in that life, are the things that are the basis of the life of the future. It is a fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

Practical Education. We may well ask what we mean by "practical education." Shall we mean that which is practical in the sense of being useful? Or shall we mean that which is practical in the sense of being a part of the life of the future? It is a fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

Discipline the Mind. If this be true, what more useful subject can be taught than that of the mind? The mind is the most important part of the human body, and it is the most important part of the human body. It is a fact that the college has been the center of the higher education of the country for centuries. It has been the place where the young men of the country have come to receive their education, and where they have been trained for the professions and for the life of the country.

I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind. I had cold, nervous, weak spots, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicine and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 10.—At no time today was the average of stock exchange prices removed more than a small fraction from yesterday's close. In the more important phases, the speculative position was unchanged, and such news as was received produced no effect upon quotations. Buyers were scarce and the market under the late was good, most of the day prices were more than level down the last of the early trading there was a small rise, and the afternoon session closed yesterday's close, although the high of the day, Missouri Pacific and a few other shares showed slight declines. United States Steel's monthly tonnage report showing a decrease of 27,000 tons was close to trade. A market that went for a number of months. The statement indicated that the steel corporation's shipments in May averaged about 300,000 tons a working day, exceeding previous records by more than 100,000 tons. This represents less than half of the capacity of the corporation's plants. The outward movement of gold was unchanged, $1,000,000 being engaged today for shipment to Europe. Cables reported a better feeling abroad with improvement in financial and political conditions. Slight irregularities appeared in the bond market. Most issues reflected earlier strength, weakness being confined principally to convertible and other speculative issues.

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, June 10.—New crop wheat in our country on the road for the big terminal markets gave the chief advantage today to the bears. Closing prices, although steady, were 1/4 to 1/2 cent under last week's. Other leading staples showed a net advance of 1/4 to 1/2 cent. Corn, 1/4 to 1/2 cent and soybeans, 1/4 to 1/2 cent. Under free selling, part of which was undoubtedly heading of the new crop, wheat values broke to a lower level than any previous time this season. Covering by shorts, who feared they had overreached themselves, furnished the wheat market an appearance of the strength during the early part of the day. Gospel of rather liberal export buying acted later as a check on the bears. Assertions were current that European import requirements promised to be larger than ever before known. Alarm over drought carried the corn market higher. Temperatures so hot as to "kill" the leaves in the fields was an additional source of anxiety. Besides, there were reports that the purchase of corn at rural stations had almost reached the vanishing point and almost all the remaining point in New York was too spoiled for use. Oats climbed as the result of crop damage advices from Illinois and other important states. Prospects of a falling off in receipts of hogs brought an upturn in provisions. At first, however, the market was weak in sympathy with the weakness in grain, but later, with the weakness being confined principally to convertible and other speculative issues.

Will Cross the Rockies With Pushmobile

Philadelphia on His Way to Frisco Fair

John A. F. DeLeon providing the motive power for the pushmobile in which he is crossing the continent. In the car is Ralph Hamilton, a Kansas City musical genius, who is his partner.

Three young men, Ralph H. Hamilton, J. A. F. DeLeon and Baron von

Stephen, arrived here yesterday on a novelty trip across the continent.

They started from Philadelphia in June and are making their way entirely on foot and pushing before them a peculiar little car which they call a pushmobile. The men are working their way slowly and have been in Denver since November making money by performing stunts. They will continue on their trip. They will remain in Colorado Springs about three days and will then push on to ward San Francisco.

The little car is modeled on the lines of an automobile and weighs about 700 pounds. It has been pushed all the way, except on down grades, when the party boards it and coasts along at a good rate of speed. The boys are not advertising anything and working on a wager. They are simply out to see the country and improve their health.

Monday night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the city building the lecture will be illustrated and the public is invited to attend. There will be no admission.

and the remainder to his children, Mrs.

Elizabeth Hall of Grand Junction and

Webster Harris Lodge of Colorado executrix in the will, which was dated in May, 1912.

Frank Speer, charged with drunkenness yesterday told Police Magistrate

Manning that his divorced wife secured liquor for him, since his name has been on the prohibited list sent him from the district attorney's office some time ago.

Mrs. Speer was arrested and Speer has been held as a witness in the case. The ruling of the district attorney prohibits those whose names are on the lists from getting liquor and provides for a fine, whether it was given directly or indirectly.

The following fines were assessed in police court yesterday infamia.

dinance, $5. C. C. Thompson, violating dog ordinance, $10. B. Douglas, violat-
